Destroyed $11,600 Worth of Property This Morning.

Blaze Started at Henry Graves' Livery Stable.

Croton Citizens Worked Heroically Forming a Bucket Brigade and Fire Was Put Out After Three Hours Hard Work--Losses and Insurance.

Croton, O., Aug. 9.—One of the most disastrous fires in the history of this place broke out about 12:30 o'clock this morning, entailing a loss of about $11,600 with insurance amounting to $10,100.

The fire was first discovered in the livery barn owned by Harry Graves, and occupied by A. S. Frosts' livery stable. The town was soon aroused and a bucket brigade was formed, the village being without fire protection. The citizens worked heroically, but notwithstanding their efforts the flames rapidly spread, and it was soon seen that there was to be a conflagration. The building in which the fire was first discovered was soon a mass of flames, which rapidly spread to the adjacent structures. The loss is footed up as follows:

Graves' livery barn, loss on building and stock, $300. Insured for $100.

Harry Graves' grocery store and barn, loss $2,000, insured for $1,200.

Harry Graves' store room, occupied by M. E. Butt as a general store, loss $1,000, insurance $1,500.

Harry Graves' dwelling house loss $1,800, insurance $1,400.

Harry Graves' grocery stock, loss $1,200, fully insured.

M. E. Butt, grocery and general store, loss $4,500, fully insured.

Postmaster Stadden's house was damaged to the extent of $100, insured. The fire was not extinguished until 3 o'clock this morning. The burned buildings will be immediately replaced with new structures of modern design.

served until December 1902, when he retired to his daughter's home in St. Louis. He made the same gallant fight for life that always marked his battles in public, but the odds were against him.

SENATOR VEST PASSED AWAY THIS MORNING

Senator of Two Republics Is No More.

After a Gallant Battle Against Odds the End Came at Sweet Springs at 5 O'clock.

Sweet Springs, Mo., August 9.—George Graham Vest, ex-United States Senator of Missouri, died at 5 a. m. today of general debility, aged 74 years.

George Graham Vest was born at Frankfort, Ky., December 6, 1830, and was graduated from Center College, Ky. in 1848. He completed his law course in 1853 and moved to Missouri the same year. He was in the Missouri senate when the war broke out. He went South and became a Confederate senator. He was elected to the United States Senate in 1879 and

MARAUDER

Who Broke Into Mrs. Brown's House at Midnight, Met with a Warm Reception.

Chicago, Ill., August 9.—Mrs. Catherine G. Brown, who last spring filed a divorce suit which stirred Chicago's society, fought a revolver duel with a midnight marauder who broke into her house at 162 Prairie avenue. The woman, who first came into public notice when she sued her husband, Chas. E. Brown, a millionaire clubman, fired three shots at a man. He, in turn, fired two. Mrs. Brown believes she wounded the intruder. She escaped unharmed. Mrs. Brown in a vivid description of the duel does not preclude the suspicion that some motive other than robbery may have actuated the intruder.

BANK RUN

Started By an Unfounded Rumor at Wilkesbarre, Pa., But Confidence Was Soon Restored.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., August 9.—Through an idle rumor the Wilkesbarre Deposit and Savings bank was subject to a run on the part of about 300 foreign depositors. Two policemen were seen in front of the bank and a foreigner at once spread the news that the bank had been robbed and the run ensued. All were saving deposits and the bank officials, taking advantage of the law which requires a 60-day notice from depositors of this class, refused to pay out any money. After a short time the majority were pacified and left the bank.

A FAST TRAIN ON THE VANDALIA BADLY WRECKED

But a Single Person Was Killed.

Five Cars of Train Running 60 Miles an Hour Were Turned Over and Destroyed.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 9.—Running at the rate of 60 miles an hour, Vandalia train No. 20, a through train from St. Louis with 360 passengers aboard, struck a broken rail near the depot at Plainfield yesterday afternoon.

Five cars were turned over and destroyed by fire, caused by the explosion of a gas storage tank.

None of the passengers were killed and only one, Mrs. E. X. Wiggerson of Antigo, Wis., was seriously injured. Nearly all of the injuries were caused by broken glass.

The fire which destroyed the coaches also consumed a grain elevator and a string of freight cars.

Nearly all of the passengers arrived in Indianapolis on the interurban lines. They report many miraculous escapes. One of the coaches was hurled to the top of a 20-foot embankment, another rolled down an embankment thirty feet high on the opposite side of the track.

TRAIN THROUGH BRIDGE

EIGHT MEN DROWNED.

Henderson, Ky., Aug. 9.—A fast freight on the Louisville, Henderson and St. Louis road went through an open bridge at Spottsville, Ky., last night and the crew of eight were drowned.

The bridge is swung on a pivot in the center and had been turned previously to the arrival of the train to admit of the passage of a steamer.

ATTEMPT TO WRECK

A TRAIN IS FOILED.

Cheyenne, Wyo., Aug. 9.—An attempt was made to wreck the Atlantic express on the Union Pacific railroad near Apsay station between Rock Springs and Green River.

John Utley, station agent at Apsay, noticing that the lights of the switch were turned in the wrong way, started to fix them, when he was fired at from the dark and wounded in the arm.

Utley fell to the ground and the would-be train wreckers fled. Utley managed to get to the station and called up Wilkins, the next station west.

The Atlantic express was flagged there and the wreck and probable hold-up was thus prevented.

SEVENTY-SIX BODIES HAVE BEEN RECOVERED

Two-Thirds of Whom Have Been Identified.

MR. KILLIN'S NARROW ESCAPE

By Holding His Breath While Under the Water For Fully a Minute He Got Out Alive.

Denver, Colo., Aug. 9.—At 8 o'clock this morning 76 bodies had been recovered and identified and the closest estimate puts the total death list at 106 from the wreck on Sunday night of east bound train No. 11, known as the Exposition Flyer, on the Denver and Rio Grande railroad near Eden station, seven miles north of Pueblo. It will take days to determine the actual number of persons who perished.

Pueblo, Colo., August 9.—The wreck of train No. 11, the World's Fair flyer, near Eden Sunday night was the worst in the history of Colorado.

The number of dead is now estimated at 80 to 100; bodies recovered 76; identified, 50; number saved, 4.

The most remarkable escape from death was that of J. M. Killin, a hardware merchant and occupant of the chair car. Mr. Killin was badly cut about the head, hands and arms. His escape was due entirely, he believes, to his ability as a swimmer, his strength and his presence of mind.

Mr. Killin said: "It was just as though the train had struck against a stone wall. The lights went out, the fixtures and everything fell down, all the passengers were thrown forward and there were the most awful cries for help and the grinding of timbers. I saw the man next to me was down and I helped him up, but just then another crash came and the train seemed to sink about five feet.

"I lost sight of everybody. I remember well the sensations that I had at the time. I knew I was in terrible danger, and my first thought was that I must get out of the car. At the second crash I was about up to my waist in water. All the time the grinding and crashing of timbers was going on.

"In another crash I was thrown about a third of the length of the car right up against the front door. I grabbed the top of the door and the car went over in the water three times. My first instinct when the water went up over my head was to hold my breath. I think I was under water for a full minute. The car naturally righted, and when it came up the water was just about my lips. I could breathe all right, and saw that the transom was just above me. With my right hand I smashed out the glass, hoping I could get out that way.

"At that moment another crash came and I was struck on the forehead by some floating object and dazed, but managed to keep my head above the water, and after a terrific struggle managed to reach the shore."

SUES MARSHAL

Bellefontaine, O., Aug. 9.—Edward Jackson, colored, the victim of the West Liberty tar and feather mob in 1900, brought suit today for $10,000 damages against Marshal Daniel Krabill, alleging Krabill helped the mob.

Tests in the subway of New York show that at one point—Astor Place—there is only a four-inch space between the car ventilators and the roofs. As the height in the clear at this place is exactly 13 feet the pessimists are making all manner of dire predictions regarding the ultimate operation of the trains.

INVITATIONS

Extended By the Labor Day Committee to Gov. Herrick and Others Are Recalled.

Columbus, O., August 9.—The Columbus Trades and Labor assembly last night revised the action of its Labor Day committee which had extended invitations to Governor Herrick, Mayor Jeffries, Col. Jas. Kilbourne, Congressman Dewitt, C. Badger and Prosecuting Attorney E. L. Taylor, to address the Labor Day meeting. Delegate Keep, of the Tailors' Union, made a motion to elapse these persons from the program and made a bitter speech. He said they all belonged to the capitalistic class and were the common enemies of labor.

TOMORROW

Strike of New York Butcher Workmen Goes Into Effect—3500 Involved.

New York, Aug. 9.—Thirteen locals of the Amalgamated meat butchers and cutters gave notice today to the local packers that at 8 o'clock tomorrow a strike would be on. The strike order, which was issued last night, will affect 3,500 men. The independent packers will not be affected by the strike order unless they aid or assist the meat trust. The strike order came from National President Donnelly in Chicago and is ordered because the meat trust is shipping the cattle east to be slaughtered by union men in the New York packing houses.

PICKETS ARE BEING PLACED IN CHICAGO

Situation is More Critical Today.

Strikers Will Try to Prevent Delivery of Ice—New York Men Will Join in the Strike.

Chicago, Ill., August 9.—Pickets are being stationed today at all retail meat markets where the products of the big packers are sold and the situation is more critical, so far as the general public is concerned, than it has been since the stockyards strike commenced four weeks ago.

The putting into effect of the ice boycott against the retail dealers is a huge undertaking, and one which calls for systematic generalship on the part of the labor leaders.

Two hundred and fifty meat markets are in the list at present, and many more will be added as fast as possible. It is the purpose of the strikers to prevent the delivery of ice at every one of these markets.

On the other hand, Chief of Police O'Neill, is preparing a counter campaign to protect nonunion teamsters in delivering ice. It is feared that this new development will result in rioting all over the city.

Tonight a meeting of the teamsters joint council will be held and it is expected that a further extension of the strike will be ordered, affecting the downtown truck teamsters, the market and express wagon drivers.

Secret arrangements are reported to be under way to get the freight handlers and the switchmen to strike.

It is believed to be the purpose of the leaders to attempt to tie up the products of the packers on the railroads as well as on the streets.

The ratification of the strike yesterday by the national organization in convention at Cincinnati, leaves the matter entirely in the hands of the Chicago council and there practically is no doubt that the sympathetic strike will be approved and measures adopted to put it into effect.

Official approval of the packing house teamsters' sympathetic strike a call to the butcher workmen in New York to walk out tomorrow and moved financial support voted by the two big street railway unions in Chicago, were three events which sent the leaders of the packing house strike to bed last night with light hearts and big hopes.

WOLF HILL

Outside of Port Arthur Has Been Taken by Japs.

Russian General Reports Losses to Enemy Were Heavy.

St. Petersburg Full of Wild Rumors That Port Arthur Has Fallen, But Report is Not Credited--Firing at Port Heard at Chifu Today.

St. Petersburg, August 9.—(Bulletin)—A message has been received from General Stoessel, commanding the Russian forces at Port Arthur, confirming the capture of Wolf Hill, outside of the Port, by the Japanese. He reports that the Japanese losses were very heavy. He adds that reinforcements to the Japanese army have already arrived. By what route the message arrived has not yet been announced.

The city is full of wild rumors that Port Arthur has fallen due to reports from Chifu of another assault in which the fortress was taken by the combined land and sea forces, though the Japanese lost three warships, including the protected cruisers Chiyoda and Itsukushima. There is not the slightest confirmation of those rumors. It is believed that the Japanese are still unable to capture the outer works, much less the fortress itself.

Sears for the Sudahy Packing company, today, secured from Judge Reed of the Federal court an injunction restraining the packing house strikers from acts of violence. The writ will be served on each of 700 named defendants.

MR. BRYAN

Believes That Parker Will Be Elected He Would Put an End to Imperialism.

Chicago, Ill., August 9.—W. J. Bryan passed through Chicago on his way home from Indiana.

From observations he has made in his travels since the St. Louis convention Mr. Bryan says he thinks Alton B. Parker will be the next President. "Everything that I have been able to gather indicates the election of the Democratic ticket," said Mr. Bryan. "I want to see the ticket elected and am going to do all that I can to bring it about."

"Parker will put an end to imperialism. Anti-imperialism, you know, was the paramount issue in the last campaign and I am satisfied that in four years Judge Parker will rid this country of the menace that has confronted it. Furthermore, I believe he will give us an administration that will counteract the military, swaggering spirit that has been inculcated by Roosevelt."

BROWN POTS

Intended For Brewing Tea Are to Be Found in New York's Sub- way Tavern.

New York, August 9.—A new era for the Subway Tavern begins today. Back of the bar, with glasses that ordinarily go with champagne, whisky straight and cocktails, are two-score little brown pots.

They are intended for brewing tea, and today a sign will be posted that "Fresh brewed tea in individual pots will be served for 10 cents." The brown pots contain enough tea to make a fairly strong cup. With them go pitchers of hot water and a small bowl of sugar or a glass full of ice, if iced tea is desired.

To discourage treating this inscription was displayed last night on the mirrors behind the bar: "Temperance is promoted by everyone paying for his own drink."

An important conference on the military situation was held at the Peterhof Palace. The Ministers of War and Marine, the Grand Duke Alexis, the High Admiral, General Motte one of General Kuropatkin's aids-de-camp, who has just arrived from the front with personal dispatches for the Emperor, and others were present.

Chifu, August 9.—Firing at Port Arthur, which was heard here from 10:30 o'clock last night, continued at most frequent intervals until 3:30 this morning. The firing was heavy and was distinctly heard at Chifu, the conditions being peculiarly favorable. A refugee declares that it will take the Japanese a month to fortify the hills which they have captured and plant siege guns. This, he says, is true owing to the heavy gun fire of the Russians which the Japanese must face in their work.

HIT ROBBERS ON HEAD WITH A MONEY BAG

A Plucky Chicagoan Had Quite an Experience

Sack Broke and the Robbers Picked Up About $500 and Made Their Escape.

Chicago, Aug. 9.—Despite three revolvers which were held to his head, with threats of death, F. H. Bartholomew, proprietor of a furnishing goods store at 1,000 West Madison street, a few doors west of Milton C. Smucker's drug store, today in broad day light used a canvass sack containing $2,200 in gold and silver as a weapon against the three robbers. The bag broke on the robber's head and the money was scattered in all directions. The anxiety of the robbers to get the cash probably saved Bartholomew's life, for as soon as the money was spread about the muddy alley where the robbery occurred, they busied themselves picking up as much of it as possible before the arrival of the police. Bartholomew cried insistently for help. When the trio had secured about $500, they were put to flight by the revolver of a policeman. They escaped and Bartholomew recovered $2,700.

GAMBLING CHARGED.

Columbus, O., August 9.—James Hunt and Adam Abrams, two colored men, are incarcerated in the city prison with a charge of gambling against their names.

The men claim that they were sent to Newark yesterday by Del Sullivan, the contractor and that while on the B. & O. train they amused themselves by throwing dice, but without stakes, and that the road detective arrested them and took them to Newark. They say the mayor of that city thought he did not have jurisdiction and they were brought here.

The New Testament was originally written in Greek. It is not claimed that any of the manuscripts written by the Evangelists themselves are in existence, but numerous early copies in use in the Christian churches in Europe, Asia and Africa are preserved in the Vatican library, in various monasteries and other places.

SENATOR STEPHEN B. ELKINS OF WEST VIRGINIA.

The senior senator from West Virginia and the leader of the Republican party in the state finds himself in an awkward position in having to fight the election to the vice presidency of his father-in-law and neighbor, Henry G. Davis. As chairman of the Republican state convention in Wheeling Senator Elkins declared that West Virginia Republicans would not let their respect for Mr. Davis carry them to the length of electing Judge Parker to the chief magistracy.

THE POSTAL MORGUE

WORK OF THE PUZZLE PROBERS AT THE DEAD LETTER OFFICE.

Experts at "Blind Reading" Who Can Unravel Riddles of Writing and Addressing That Appear at First to Be Unsolvable Enigmas.

When a letter goes to the dead letter office at Washington it is not necessarily "dead." So far as the ability of the ordinary postoffice official to decipher the address is concerned it is "dead," but there may be a spark of life in it for all that. To resurrect it, to galvanize it into living legibility, to fan into existence the faint essence of life and utility, is the business of the specialists whose long training has made them expert at "blind reading." Many and many a derelict, hopelessly discarded by the puzzle probers of the country's postoffices, finds its way out of the morgue of correspondence and into the hands of the person to whom it was intended to go.

There are just two points of which Uncle Sam's postoffice never loses sight. One is that the letter is meant for some one of the millions of persons in the United States; the other is that it is a religious duty to deliver it. Scarcely has the envelope to be opened in order to get a clew not furnished by the attempt at an address on the outside. And seldom could anything be wider or wider of the mark than most of the addressed missives that find their way to the hands of the readers of riddles who wrestle with them and who are rarely nonplused. Somewhere about the scrawls of the address is a clew, no matter how slender. Practice has resolved the working of these tiny clues by almost a science. If so much as a street and number are given, frequently the letter is forwarded with but little delay on the operating table of these specialists.

Instances have been known even where jokers had addressed letters in cipher and these have promptly reached the addressees. In fact, cipher would be as legible as a top line on a three sheet poster compared with some of the inscriptions on which are exhausted elaborate calculations and ponderous thought before they are discarded as unsolvable. Processes of elimination are resorted to that would discount a Sherlock Holmes who had a life training as a postmaster. Deductions are made that would daunt a builder of logarithms. Horse sense, plain, ordinary reason on logical lines, embracing intentions of senders, allowing for phoneticisms of language and for illiteracy of correspondents, are at the root of many of the revivals into living messages of some of the apparently dead beyond recall.

Perhaps the greatest flood of "blind" letters from abroad come from Italy. For many years after the Italian mail had grown to be one of the greatest in volume that comes to these shores the dead letter experts were troubled. The fly tracks on the envelopes, written with some vile compound that loses identity in the filth of the paper before it has been a day at sea, were riddles of the most impenetrable nature. Gradually, by deduction, these became more intelligible to the experts. Soon they mastered the fact that the average Italian peasant who had a message to send to his kin here wasn't a bit particular where he put the postoffice address. Often the name of the town would get mixed up with the first, second or third patronymic of the addressee, or the street would assume an importance beyond all else on the letter's face. Sometimes, indeed, there wasn't an address on the whole business; the cautious writer would put it inside. All these idiosyncrasies were mastered in time, until it is almost safe to say that a blank envelope would be delivered properly if it bore an Italian stamp.

In the museum of the dead letter office are some trophies to the skill of the "blind reader." These men are proud of their calling and like to get, if possible, the envelopes which were in their day "sticklers" to the force. These are framed in an interesting collection for the admiration of visitors to the morgue.

One of these exhibits is a soiled envelope containing three lines of execrable scrawl; the only one of which that is regular in outline is at the bottom, where educated letter writers put the town and state. Above are two lines that look like the aimless rambling of a palsied hand. The bottom scrawl looks like Dizzzo Cuezza; the rest looks like nothing or anything. Getting down to work at this hieroglyphic exhibit, a glance showed the expert that the bottom was the man's name, as usual, with the cart before the horse, and that it was "Nozzo Dizzzo, or something that would sound like that if spoken. Two of the characters in the top line were taken to mean "N. Y." or "N. J.," both being alike to the peasant of Sicily. This much gained, the rest was a puzzle until wise eyes saw a number "20" in the inscription. "Hum!" Evidently a town with numbered streets pursued the investigator. Then "New" came out of the first word. The second looked like Brunel. "Huh!" said the expert, "easy money—New Brunswick." And so it was, New Brunswick, N. J. And there was consequent joy in an Italian-American household.

It is the legible handwriting with the "blind" address that gives the most trouble. For instance, here's one puzzle written in a good round hand and addressed:

An Den Hern Schneider Master,
Petroksie
Pushkat
Kansas.

"Kansas" was the plain address, and if the writer hadn't spaced his lines as he did a jump would have been made to the "Horton street" part of it. But

It was addressed to "Petroksie," and there are postoffices by that name in the United States. "Pushkat" was the stumbling block. The "blind readers" had seen letters with that magic word on them before. It meant that the addressee were proud proprietors of push carts. In this case it was found that "Pushkat" meant Fort Scott, which has a Horton street. The letter was really directed "To the Messrs. Boss Tailors Petroksie, 522 Horton street, Fort Scott, Kansas."

It wasn't a Celt who deciphered the inscription on a letter to "Annie McGilivray, Trouny, emschers." The address was in just two lines. Trouny was finally resolved into "Troy" and "emschers" into "New Hampshire," whereupon Annie McGilivray got the letter from her mother in Jersey City.

A was in Greenville, Ky., put a series of hieroglyphics on a letter and thought he'd have the satisfaction of making somebody in the postoffice miserable. The local postmaster gave it up without bothering a minute over it and passed it on to the "dead" people at Washington. The inspector to whom it fell was dazed for a second. The next instant he saw it was a cipher. If there's any cipher system known that has eluded the attention of the department the readers would like to hear of it. This one was at a glance the code used in Poe's story of the "Goldbug," and the letter went back in the next mail to Elmer Hall of Greenville, Ky., who had launched it.

One of the "horse sense" solutions is a letter that fooled the postmaster at Marlin, Tex. It was addressed to "Mr. January Gordon." That much could be deciphered without more than ordinary eye-sight. The rest of it was a queer tangle, from which loomed quite plainly "Central college" and something that started with "Nash" and merged into a wave line of trills. "Mr. January Gordon, eh?" pondered the reader. "Ah, colored man evidently. Central college? Let's see: where's there a Central college? Oh, yes, Nashville, Tenn., by gum—and it's a college for colored persons too. Easier ever!" He wasn't guessing. He knew his business.

These are merely samples, and comparatively simple ones at that, of the postal puzzles that come under the eyes of Uncle Sam's experts. But, as pointed out, the specialists at Washington die out an address of a letter anywhere about the front, back or inside of the envelope, and they send the letters along with a sureness of aim that is wonderful.—New York Press.

Watermelon Rind Preserve.

Every one knows how delicious watermelon rind preserve is, provided it is carefully prepared. In the south watermelon preserve is almost as highly rated. The melons are chosen before they are quite ripe and are peeled and sliced and placed in a weak brine for several days. After a thorough washing in clear water to remove the salt the melons are put in hot water in a preserving kettle and boiled briskly for ten minutes, after which they are transferred to another kettle containing a very weak alum water. While they are boiling in this a strong ginger tea is prepared and the melons transferred to this, where the boiling continues for a few minutes. Prepare a sirup of two pounds of sugar to one pound of fruit, flavor with a lemon cut in very thin slices and place in fruit therein for a last boiling. Let it remain in the sirup until quite clear and easily pierced with a fork. Seal while hot.

Instead of Mayonnaise.

Many people object to oil in any form, and for these the following mixture will be found a delicious substitute for the ordinary mayonnaise: Beat two ounces of fresh butter to a cream with a wooden spoon, add a teaspoonful each of powdered sugar and fine salt, half a teaspoonful of mustard and a dash of cayenne pepper. Beat the yolks of two eggs lightly, set over the fire in a bain-marie and add very gradually half a gill of hot vinegar, beating well till the mixture thickens, then remove it from the fire, mix in the creamed butter, beat all well together, and when quite cold stir in a gill and a half of whipped cream to make about half a pint of sauce altogether. This dressing can be used in any case where mayonnaise is generally served.

Pie Cutting Machine.

It has more than once placed the careful housekeeper in an embarrassing position to have to serve slices of pie of grossly unequal sizes, to say nothing of a variety of shapes, to her guests at dinner. The solution to the problem is found in a pie cutter, herewith illustrated, which is guaranteed to cut the delicacy in exactly even slices. The operation is simple and quick, which adds materially to the merits of the affair. Explanation is hardly necessary. The cutter consists of a metal ring about the size of the pie plate and having extended at right angles from rim to rim two blades which sever the pie into four equal slices.

Household Hints.

An easy and quick way of cleaning candlesticks is to warm the candlestick and then rub it well with paper. Save labor by mending clothes before they are sent to the wash. Washing generally results in making the holes larger.

Freshen gilt frames by brushing over with the white of egg beaten up with an ounce of soda. Use a soft brush. Stained flower vases may be cleaned by adding some vinegar to a lather of soap and water. Shake till all stain is removed.

Brass, if leaguered, should be rubbed with a cloth dipped in sweet oil and afterward polished with soft cloths. Unacquered brass can be cleaned with lemon juice or paraffin and bath brick. Polish with chamois leather.

A New Apple Jelly.

Any juicy apples will do. Wash and wipe them. Then cut them up, without peeling, into eighths, or if large into smaller pieces. Barely cover with water and cook to a pulp. Then strain by putting the pulp into a bag and letting it drain all night. In the morning take a pound of sugar to a pint of juice and cook about twenty minutes, or till it jellies on the spoon. Then cut up two lemons, peel and all, stir into hot jelly and take off the fire at once and strain into jelly glasses. It will be of a delicate color and of a most delightful flavor, much more dainty than apple jelly usually is.

How to Test Coffee.

Genuine roasted coffee of no matter what quality will not impart its color to cold water, nor will the bean lose its smooth surface or hard, tough consistency when subjected to a scalding of any duration, whereas chicory and other imitations become soft and spongy when soaked and render the water muddy, so that it is only necessary to give the suspect a bath to determine its genuineness. Of course the bean must be tried before grinding and the water must be cold, otherwise the test will not be conclusive.

Remmending Table Linen.

Have your tablecloth ready as it to sew by machine, and turn the hem all along with the hemmer, but without threading the needle. This turning in of the hem is, every one knows, the most laborious part of the task. With this accomplished, it is a comparatively easy matter to complete the sewing by hand.

Well, it WILL do just that. It WILL cure you, no matter how long you have been sick, or how serious your present condition may be, provided it is not such as to require surgical treatment. ## VITONA

"The New Way to Health"

This wonderful prescription—it is not a mere patent medicine—has been used with marvellous success in hundreds of cases by a physician in his private practice. It contains a secret ingredient discovered by a German chemist, from whom we have purchased the American rights. This chemical acts directly on the blood, cleansing it of all impurities, destroying the germs and thereby restoring health to all the vital organs which depend upon the condition of the blood.

"Vitona" is the only medicinal agent which will protect the Liver, Stomach and Kidneys from the ravages of disease. When these organs are deranged it is always a sign of some disorder in the blood. Thousands of people have blood disease and don't know it. They think the ailment is local to the organs affected and treat them instead of getting at the real seat of the disease and eradicating it completely by means of Vitona. Here are symptoms of blood trouble:

STICHOMETRY.

A Book Custom That Never Attained Any Very Extensive Usage.

Stichometry, from the Greek stichos, a row, line or verse, and metron, a measure, is used in two senses. The first applies to the subject matter of Hebrew literature, whereby the rhythmic lines which constitute the parallelism of the poetical books are portioned off from one another; the second to an entirely artificial method of measuring off the contents of each book by so many lines of fixed or average length.

The former is of great antiquity and may have been introduced by the sacred writers themselves. The latter is due to Euthalius of Alexandria, 458, who applied it to the Pauline epistles and later to the gospels.

St. Jerome professed to have founded his method upon a similar treatment of the text in existing manuscripts of Demosthenes and Cicero. His original arrangement is thought to be represented by the Codex Amiatinus at Florence and that of Euthalius in the Codex Claromontanus at Paris.

As this system left a large proportion of each page blank and as vellum was costly, stichometry never attained any very extensive usage.

GROUND PEARLS.

The Product of the Young of Certain Scale Insects.

The large order of hemiptera includes what are known as scale insects (coccidae), some of which are very destructive to fruit trees, while others are the source of cochineal, and, perhaps, were the mummy upon which the children of Israel fed in the wilderness.

The life history of these insects includes a motionless pupa stage, similar to the chrysalis of a moth or butterfly. Before passing into this dormant and helpless condition, the young of certain scale bugs make their way into the earth, and then a sticky fluid exudes from their bodies and quickly hardens into a protective coating, resembling plain or colored glass, and causes them to look something like beads, so that in some parts of the world they are known as "ground pearls."

The best known of these are dug out of the earth in the West Indies and strung into necklaces or other ornaments. Similar objects are prized and worn by the natives of other regions.

KEROSENE OIL.

It Is Paraffin In Great Britain and Refined Petroleum Elsewhere.

Petroleum (petra, rock; oleum, oil) is a liquid bitumen exuding from rocks. Paraffin (parum, little; affinis, akin), discovered by Reichenbach in 1830, in investigating the tar produced in the distillation of wood, is a colorless wax-like solid, which he named from its extraordinary chemical indifference, its "little affinity" with anything. He afterward isolated from the same material a liquid oil, which he called eupion, "very fat." For years both were regarded merely as chemical curiosities until it was realized that eupion forms the body of petroleum.

Pure paraffin resembles spermaceti and is inodorous and tasteless. Paraffin oil is chiefly a mixture of fluid hydrocarbons, and as it approaches gas more closely than any other illuminating agent and is cheap it has come into general use. Illuminating oils manufactured from petroleum are sold in Great Britain as "paraffin oil," in the United States as "kerosene" and on the continent as "refined petroleum."—London Globe.

Copperhead and Rattler.

The copperhead isn't a bad looking snake, as snakes go, but it has a mighty bad reputation. In fact, it is generally regarded as a mean sort of snake and is apparently without a friend or even an apologist. Although it won't chase you nor go out of its way to get a crack at you, it probably does more business per snake than does the rattler, the moccasins or any other of the venomous kind. It is said that where there is one there are always two copperheads, so when you smell green cucumbers look out, for that seems to be the only warning you will get of the presence of this reptile. The rattler is a little more polite, also more vicious, for after giving you timely warning it will stand its ground and fight like a good fellow, while the copperhead will run and hide.

THE COURTS

SUIT TO SET ASIDE TRANSFER OF PROPERTY.

Now in the Name of Sadie J. Sigler—
Realty Transfers—Day's Court House Pickups.

C. C. Forry, as trustee in bankruptcy for J. E. Sigler, a bankrupt, has commenced suit in the Common Pleas Court against Sadie J. Sigler and J. E. Sigler to set aside an alleged fraudulent conveyance to Sadie J. Sigler. The plaintiff says that on the 30th of December, 1899, the defendant, J. E. Sigler, who was indebted to various persons in about the sum of $500 conspired with Sadie J. Sigler to defraud his creditors and, putting his property beyond the reach of his creditors, purchased certain real estate, taking the title to the same in the name of Sadie J. Sigler.

It is alleged that prior to and since the time mentioned J. E. Sigler has been engaged in farming, butchering and marketing, conducting the business in the name of Sadie J. Sigler, and has invested the proceeds in real estate and personal property, all of which is held by Sadie J. Sigler, and is valued at $5,000, which has been acquired by J. E. Sigler since December 30, 1899, and that he has no property subject to levy and sale under execution, except that which is held by Sadie J. Sigler.

Plaintiff asks that all of said property be adjudged the property of J. E. Sigler, that the transfers be set aside, and that Sadie J. Sigler be required to convey and transfer the same to the plaintiff, to be by him administered according to law as trustee in bankruptcy for J. E. Sigler, and for such other and further relief as plaintiff may be entitled to, either in law or equity.

E. S. RANDOLPH,
Attorney for the plaintiff.

EXERCISES FOR HEALTH.

A Little Shaking Up Before Breakfast Is a Good Thing.

For almost every person under fifty, and for a great many people over fifty, exercise is the nearest approach to a panacea for bodily ills that has yet been devised. Causing the body to move and stretch and push and pull makes the blood circulate, the liver do its work and the nerves pick up their dropped stitches. An excellent time to exercise is before breakfast. Neither man nor beast, as a rule, goes to sleep hungry. During sleep there is little waste of energy. On waking there is no immediate demand for replenishment of lost tissues. Furthermore, the long sleep has left the nerves and the digestive apparatus dull and leadened. To sit down to a heavy breakfast within fifteen or twenty minutes after getting out of bed means that the stomach receives food which it does not need and will not readily digest.

A little shaking up before breakfast arouses the vitality and consequently makes the appetite and digestion better. That means better work done during the day. If a man can get away from work in time to take additional exercise during the afternoon he will have a better appetite for the evening meal and more power to digest it. That will mean better sleep at night. Many a man has succeeded in the world without paying any attention to his body.—Joseph Chamberlain, for instance. But such men would probably have succeeded more easily and certainly with more pleasure to themselves if they had taken care of their bodies. A strong mind is certainly stronger and more enduring in a healthy body than in a sickly one. The best way to keep the body healthy is to use it.—Chicago Tribune.

Only 50 people were present at the notification of President Roosevelt and not more than 200 were in attendance at the notification of Fairbanks. This policy of exclusiveness on the part of the Republicans will be greatly in contrast with the large popular demonstrations that are to characterize the notifications of Parker and Davis by the Democrats. Preparations have been made for the reception of a very large crowd at Esopus when Judge Parker is notified tomorrow.

WHEN SHALL THE TARIFF BE REFORMED?

In his speech accepting the Republican nomination for vice president, Senator Fairbanks repeated the stale platitudes that "when altered conditions make changes in tariff schedules desirable their modification can be safely entrusted to the Republican party." Whereupon the New York World calls upon Senator Fairbanks to answer the following questions in his promised "fuller expression" of his views in his written letter of acceptance:

"Why is it that the ten tariff revisions or tinkers by the Republican party since the war have left the average duty higher than it ever was before? Is there never to be a reform downward? Why is it that more protection is now demanded by and given to 'infant industries' three-quarters of a century old than was deemed necessary forty years ago?"

Senator Fairbanks' speech simply serves to emphasize the second of the "ten living questions" addressed by The World to Mr. Roosevelt:

"Shall the tariff never be revised except with the consent and under the direction of its beneficiaries—by the friends of its abuses, its extortions and its discriminations—or shall it be revised in a judicial spirit by the friends of the masses and for the common weal?"

The intensity of the fight which is to be made to carry New York for Mr. Roosevelt is indicated by the declaration of one of the President's friends that he would regard the loss of his own state as a repudiation of his administration by the business interests of the nation. Furthermore, Roosevelt realizes that New York's influence carries with her Connecticut and New Jersey, and consequently he is well aware of the danger of losing all of them. In fact, he makes no attempt to conceal his alarm.

The New York World announces on authority that President Roosevelt has received assurance of the support of J. Pierpont Morgan. The big trust magnate, of course, has assurance from Roosevelt that are reciprocal Morgan for some time has denounced Roosevelt and threatened to oppose his election, but peace between them has been effected, the World says, by the President promising the trust magnate to be good hereafter.

Daniel S. Lamont, member of Cleveland's last cabinet and one of the most popular men personally in New York, seems to be the favorite candidate of the Democrats for governor. President Roosevelt has admitted his fear of Lamont's candidacy. He is an easy, for he thinks Lamont will give the Republican candidate a hard fight.

A Washington dispatch says that the factional fight of the Republicans in Wisconsin is causing Mr. Roosevelt much worry in spite of all the assurances that certain party leaders of the State are giving him to brace him up.

A Real Leader and a Live Campaign.

(New York World)
Judge Parker's resignation of his judicial office showed not only courage but a strong sense of propriety and a keen appreciation of the requirements of his candidacy.

He was under no legal obligation to resign. Nevertheless he surrendered a seven years' tenure of a great judicial office as soon as he decently could in justice to his colleagues, and subordinated his personal material interests to large-minded party obligations.

The sacrifice was of no mean proportions. Judge Parker is a poor man. The election is not certain. His salary was his only important income. He has never had a corporation practice. During most of his service on the bench his emoluments have been modest. It is only in the large cities that Judges receive large salaries.

Judge Parker has not hesitated, however, to subordinate his personal affairs to the proprieties of his judicial position and the demands of his candidate. He has recognized the fact that a candidate for the Presidency should not be hampered by official restraints, but must necessarily be the leader spokesman and mouthpiece of his party. To be a fearless critic of public evils and public abuses is his primary duty to his party and to the people and this he cannot be if his lips are sealed by the bandage of judicial office. He must be no less free to attack than is a President in power to explain and defend.

In resigning Judge Parker displayed the same manly characteristics that he evidenced when he sent his telegram to the St. Louis convention. He has confidence in his cause and the courage of that confidence. In every test he is showing himself a real leader, and now that a real leader has forged his way to the front, no time should be lost in inaugurating a vigorous, wideawake campaign.

PREFERS PARKER TO IMPERIALISM

George S. Boutwell Gives Reasons For Quitting the Party He Helped Found.

Groton, Mass., Aug. 9.—George S. Boutwell, one of the founders of the Republican party, secretary of the treasury under President Grant, governor of his state, United States senator and a representative in congress, is for Judge Parker for president.

He gave these reasons for his preference of Judge Parker to Mr. Roosevelt:

"I am with the Democratic party because I have made a distinct decision in regard to the Philippine policy, and whatever may happen in regard to domestic affairs nothing can be so unfortunate as this transformation from a republic to an empire. Therefore, I do not concern myself about what the Democratic party may do, but I am satisfied that they will not sacrifice the honor of the nation by leaving a great opportunity.

"The Republicans had a great opportunity but they neglected it."

THE RACE ISSUE, OR THE CIVIL WAR OVER AGAIN

(Pittsburg Post.)

It was President Roosevelt's trusted friend and confidant who declared a few weeks ago that the reconstruction measures of the Republican party, and notably the fifteenth amendment, enforcing negro suffrage, were unequalled failures. The country, it was intimated, had grown away from them, and for the most part they are dead issues, as the Democrats have declared the silver coinage issue to be. Yet the Republican national convention by its platform proclaimed it to be the determination of the party in power if successful next November at the ballot-box, to compel the Southern states to permit and protect the negro in the exercise of the right of suffrage in the South, threatening in the event of refusal to enforce the fifteenth amendment to cut down the representation of the Southern states in lower house of Congress and in the electoral college. This identical negro plank was rejected in 1900 and 1896. What then was the motive for inserting it in the platform for 1904? The New York Sun says that it came from a wish to secure the negro vote in certain doubtful states of the North, and suggests that it is pretty sure to estrange many thousand of Southern white men who are now living in doubtful states of the North, and who but for the negro plank might have supported Roosevelt, as they supported McKinley.

Nor is this the limit. The industrial and business interests and voters of the North are intensely opposed to any attempt to revive in this country the scandals and wrongs of the reconstruction times. To carry out the Republican platform will undoubtedly have this effect. The common sense of the that office will act as chairman of the committee to notify Judge Parker, stopped over in Washington a few hours on his way to Europe. He is optimistic in discussing Democratic prospects, and, according to his calculations, his party is due to win the Presidency this year. Mr. Clark figures on 253 Electoral votes, or 14 more than a majority. This is his table: Solid South, 151; New York, 33; New Jersey, 12; Maryland, 8; West Virginia, 7; Connecticut, 7; Delaware, 3; Indiana, 15; Colorado, 5; Montana, 3; Nevada, 3; total, 253.

IT IS SERIOUS.

Some Newark People Fail To Realize the Seriousness.

The constant aching of a bad back, back.

The weariness, the tired feeling. The pains and aches of kidney ills. Are serious—if neglected. Dangerous urinary troubles follow. A Newark citizen shows you how to avoid them.

C. H. Myers, 30 South Front street, freight conductor B. & O., says: "I had a pain across the small of my back for four or five years. It was such a constant ache that I had little chance to forget it. I went to Crayton's drug store and got Doan's Kidney Pills. This was not the first medicine I had used in trying to get rid of the trouble, but I can say it is the first that ever gave me quick and lasting relief for the backache entirely disappeared."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-McIlhenn, Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name Doan's and take no other.

What It Contained. Analysis of the water of an artesian well bored in a southern state showed that it contained a large proportion of ammonia. Uncle Zeb, a colored resident of the town, spoke of the matter in this wise to a drummer whose grip he was "toting" from the station: "We's sot er artillery well here, an' las' week dey done scandalized de water an' foun' it plum full er hydrophobia."

Wouldn't Raise Prices.

"Oh, dat I could git a job in de legislature!" exclaimed Brother Diekey. "What would you be willing to work for?" some one asked.

"Well, sah," was the reply, "I wouldn't charge a cent no' den do yuther legislators."—Atlanta Constitution.

It Disagreed With Her.

"I told you it wouldn't do to invite Willie's teacher to dinner as long as I have to do my own cooking."

"Why, what happened?"

"She whipped Willie this morning."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Letting Him Live.

"I'd willingly die for you."

"Your income dies with you, does it not?"

"Certainly."

"Then don't."—Houston Post.

American people has reached the conclusion that to revive the old sectional bitterness and conflict will not in any way advance the negro but, on the contrary, result in greater discontent and possibly wrongdoing, and probably be followed by sectional turmoil and conflict that will end the prosperous conditions North and South which make up the common sum of prosperity for the whole country.

That is the view sensible business people at the North take of this attempt to re-create war animosities and political violence. Northern people are now well content that the race question in all its relations must be settled by the people most concerned, and they are the people of the Southern and negro States. They are prosperous and are making a great progress in a material way. Why should we of the North interfere by attempting to force negro suffrage on the people of the South. In the first place, it cannot be accomplished. We would not submit to it ourselves. Let any Northern man ask himself the question. He well knows the fact that the Southern people understand the negro question better than he can hope to do. To get to the bottom of the question, Theodore Roosevelt must be held responsible for this attempt to revive the race issue in its most offensive shape by forcing negro voters on the unwilling Southern people.

German medical journals are recommending as a remedy for appendicitis walking on all fours twenty minutes, four times a day. The exercise strengthens the abdominal muscles.

Hitching piles? Never mind if everything else failed to cure you. Try Doan's Ointment. No failure there. 50 cents, at any drug store.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

[Special Correspondence.]

After a trip around the world, which occupied 146 days, Assistant Secretary Herbert L. D. Peirce of the state department and Mrs. Peirce have returned to Washington. Mr. Peirce's trip was undertaken for the purpose of conducting an investigation into the affairs of the United States consulates and consular agencies in the several countries he visited and of the legations at Peking and Tokyo. The itinerary included Italy, Egypt, India, the Straits Settlements and China and Japan. In all, he investigated conditions in twenty consulates, six consular agencies and the legations at Peking and Tokyo.

Object to Civil Service. Members of the local trades unions, including Milford Spohn, a leading bricklayer and secretary of the union of that trade, are strongly in favor of revising the civil service rules so as to leave out per diem employees from the jurisdiction of the civil service commission.

It is stated that the best mechanics do not apply to the civil service commission for work, for the reason that they will not waste the time required for examination nor the expense attached to the several affidavits required by the civil service commission. Then there is the uncertainty of getting work on a government job, even after they have gone to the trouble of making application. If they are not employed by the government within a year after the application has been made their names are dropped from the civil service lists and they have to make new applications in order to become eligible again.

Minister Combs Goes to His Post. Leslie Combs, United States minister to Guatemala and Honduras, who has been on leave of absence in this country, has returned to his post after having conferred with the officials of the state department respecting claims of certain American citizens and corporations which he is charged to press against the government to which he is accredited.

Potomac River Improvements. Similar to the report of the District committee on wharfs is the recommendation of Colonel A. M. Miller, officer in charge of the Potomac river improvements, in his annual report made recently at the war department, that the government should acquire more land on the Anacostia river, near the navy yard, for wharfage purposes. The growing river business, he says, demands that there be a larger front for wharfs in the District.

For the coming fiscal year the officers asks for an appropriation of $750,000 to be expended largely in a continuation of reclamation of Potomac park and the Potomac flats.

Beef For Statesmen.

The local supply of prime beef comes from the hills of Virginia. This meat is usually grass fed, and the cattle are allowed to roam over a considerable territory of hilly country. The result is that there is some muscle in the beef and not so much fat. Out of a herd of, say, 100 native cattle perhaps fifteen or twenty bullocks will prove of Governor General Tsien of Canton is said to have urged the Empress of China five times to declare war against Russia, and to have sent telegraphic messages to all the leading Mandarines in the empire to support him.

PEOPLE OF THE DAY

Papal Secretary of State. Cardinal Merry del Val, papal secretary of state, who is in the public eye because of the present difficulties between the Vatican and the French government, succeeded Cardinal Rampolla a short time after Pius X. became pope.

Rafaele Merry del Val was the secretary of the conclave that elected the present pope and, in accordance with precedent, was made a cardinal shortly afterward. His elevation over the heads of all the older cardinals, first as secretary of state and then as prefect of the sacred palaces, soon followed. Cardinal del Val's mother is an Englishwoman and his father a Spanish marquis and distinguished diplomat. He inherited an aptitude and taste for diplomacy.

the very first class. An eight rib cut from one of these choice native bullocks will weigh perhaps thirty-six pounds. This beef sells for several cents more a pound than the Chicago article.

Contracts For Ordnance. The navy department has received proposals from the Midvale and Bethlehem companies to furnish about a million dollars' worth of nickel steel forgings for seventeen sets of twelve inch, 45 caliber; one set of ten inch, 40 caliber, and twelve sets of eight inch, 45 caliber guns. The bid of the two companies is the same—viz, 30 cents a pound—and the contract will probably be divided between them.

Pigeons In Library Dome. The Congressional library has pigeons in its gold dome, and their billing and cooing has become an annoyance to patrons of the reading room. A pair of birds entered one of the ventilators of the rotunda some time ago, surveyed the fresco work, the lavish profusion of gold paint and statuary, and apparently decided to settle there permanently.

The library authorities were interested, and the sight of a pair of handsome, lovelorn pigeons flitting from cornice to cornice and building an excellent nest against a background of $4,000 worth of gold leaf was a novelty to visitors. But the nesting operations have taken on a more serious aspect since then, for other pigeons have pre-empted claims on the nooks and corners of the lofty dome, and it looks as though Uncle Sam will soon have a mammoth loft on his hands.

The City Trees.

The advance of the woodman into Lafayette square, as planned, probably will not occur until September, nor are the other parks in the city likely to be molested before that time. A change of heart has not been experienced, but the officials will hardly be able to plan and execute their attack before September. Much difficulty has been experienced in getting together the various authorities whom the president asked to co-operate in carrying out Forester Pinchot's ideas, and the end of the troubles is not yet.

To Suppress Red Lamps.

An endeavor will be made by the commissioner to prevent the erection of illuminated signs any part of which shall be colored red. Red lights have been adopted by the electrical department to indicate at night the location of fire alarm boxes, and it is not desired to have other red lights on the streets that may interfere therewith.

CARL SCHOFIELD.

End of Bitter Fight.

"Two physicians had a long and bitter fight over an access on my chest bone," writes a J. B. Hughes of Pittsburg, Pa., "and here I am. Everybody thought my time had come. As a last resort I tried Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption. The benefit I received was striking and I was on my feet in a few days. Now I've entirely regained my health." It conquers all coughs, colds and throat and lung troubles. Guaranteed by Frank D. Hall, druggist. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free.

EIGHT TO ONE

Came By Telephone, and Six to One By Telegraph, But Newark Won Just the Same.

There was some confusion in the city Monday night over the result of the ball game between Idlewild and Steubenville at the latter place in the afternoon. Both telephone exchanges had received the word that Newark had won 8 to 1 and told hundreds of inquirers that this was the score. A telegram to the sporting editor of The Advocate from "Scottie" read: "Steubenville one, Newark six; Farrell and Snodgrass."

The same telegram was received by Mr. Barney Byrnes and posted in his place of business on the North Side.

On the strength of this both "centrals" were called up and given the score from "Scottie's" telegram, which of course, seemed official and after that they gave inquirers the score as six to one.

It now develops that 8 to 1 was the correct score, and the mistake in Scott's telegram seems inexplicable unless the operator in either sending or receiving the message, made a mistake.

Bali Team Disbands.

Coshocton, O., August 9.—The Coshocton Reds baseball team, with whom young Vernon Lowe played and met with the accident that cost him his life at Presden Saturday, have disbanded and cancelled all dates for the season.

OWLS WON.

The Woodside Owls won a game of ball from the Star Sluggers yesterday. The feature of the game was the star playing of "Shorty" Coyne on first. The game was witnessed by a large crowd. The score stood 17 to 12.

Likely Green Pacers, These.

At the Charleston (Ill.) track are a dozen green pacers, about all of Arget Wilkes, which are stepping miles around 2:20. Walter Dunn has driven the three-year-old Billy Alfalfa, by Arget Wilkes, a mile in 2:17; St. Plunkard, a mile in the same notch; another green gelding in 2:18, and several two and three-year-olds in 2:20 to 2:25. A. C. Martin has a two-year-old pacer, by Edward F. Bee, that is "oil in the can," and Ed Paul has a whole string of good ones.

In the Southern League. President Kavanaugh has instructed every umpire in the southern league that wrangling must be stopped; that they must be firm; that discipline must be enforced and that any and every umpire must be dispensed with.

Umpire Carpenter Dropped. The umpire staff of the American league has been reduced to five men by President Johnson. Umpire Carpenter being dropped. He is a good umpire and should have no trouble in securing another berth at once.

Concerning Pitchers. Three pitchers are doing all the work for McGraw, and the New Yorks are at the top. Some of the big league's teams work so many pitchers that they don't pitch often enough to do their best work.

What Nichols Says. "No," says Pitcher Kid Nichols. "The cares of being a manager do not weigh me down. When I'm on the field I'm a player, not a manager, and I don't try to be player and manager at the same time."

The Hero Starts In August. The Hero, 2:10, owned by A. A. Neal, is now in Ed Paul's stable at Charleston, Ill., and will make his first start this month.

A good thing: The Prophylactic tooth brush. A much better thing: The "P. S." (Prophylactic Special), with novel flexible handle. It surprises and delights.

W. A. SHICK, JR., NOTED HARVARD SPRINTER in this event, but was unable to take from him a lead which he obtained thirty yards from the start.

Two games will again be put on at the Y. M. C. A. field, Friday afternoon. Martinsburg is coming to play the Y. M. C. A. team at 3 o'clock. This should be a strong game. Then at 4-30 the second game in the championship series of the Home League will be played between the Doctors and the Newspaper men. Which ever team wins will have to meet the Merchants, who, last Tuesday defeated the Lawyers. The series promises to be very interesting. The admission Friday will be 15 cents; grandstand free.

Dash Racing For Trotters.

Dash racing will be given a thorough trial at the Empire City (N. Y.) and Brighton Beach (N. Y.) tracks this year, as the management makes the announcement that all races with the exception of the early closing events and the John H. Schultz Experimental stake will be confined to dashes. This tendency on the part of those interested in tracks where the trotters are forced into competition with the runners for the patronage of the public has been toward shortening the races.

The two in three system has found a permanent place in the programme of most all the big meetings, and the dash races have been tried in a limited way at Memphis.

Last year the Empire City management found that the shortened races whereby all horses were sent to the barn that did not stand for money at the end of two heats was popular with the public, so that this year it was determined to take an even more radical step. The purses are liberal enough to insure good entries, and there is no reason why the idea of applying the dash system to trotting and pacing races should not be thoroughly tested.

The New Boston American President

President John I. Taylor of the Boston American league team, who has been traveling with his champions over the entire circuit in order to get well acquainted with his associates in the league, is the youngest major league club owner in the country, but one of the staunchest friends of the great national pastime. Being an ardent admirer of baseball, Mr. Taylor gets as much pleasure and satisfaction out of the ownership of a crack club as others would out of a steam yacht, yet his purchase of the Boston team was a strictly business venture, and the affairs of the club are conducted along business lines only. He is a combination of thoroughbred sportsman and clean business man, and withal one of the staunchest supporters of the American league.

TYING KNOTS IN JAPAN.

It is a Serious Art, as a Mistake May Mean an Insult.

Like the arranging of flowers, the tying of knots has been carried to the point of a complex art by the Japanese. There is one way—one right way, that is—to knot the cord that confines a birthday or New Year's present. There is one way to tie the broad bag of the tea jar when the latter is empty and another when it is full. Not only general ignorance of social customs but deadly insults may be communicated by the way a knot is tied, foreigners often making dreadful mistakes either through not knowing or from ignoring the niceties of knot etiquette.

Hooks and eyes, buttons and buckles are unknown so far as Japanese dress is concerned. They do not have much to fasten, but what they do have they fasten with cord. That is why they have carried the tying of cord so far. The Japanese have hundreds of ornamental knots, some of them so old that they antedate written history.

Japanese children are taught to make knots just as they are taught to write and draw. All sorts of flower and animal forms are copied. There is the chrysanthemum knot, the iris knot, plum blossom, pine tree and cherry blossom knots. There is a stork knot, a turtle knot, a knot named for the sacred mountain Fujiyama. An easy knot is called the "old man's knot." There is also an "old woman's knot."

THE PARISIAN LUNCH.

A Substantial Meal Served in the Middle of the Day.

Noon or 12:30 is the universal hour for the strictly Parisian lunch, which commences with "hors d'oeuvres," appetizers eaten with butter—the only time butter is ever served on a French table.

The endless variety of "hors d'oeuvres" would fill a volume—sardines, shrimps, olives, radishes. Tiny salads of every description are included among them.

An egg or fish course follows, and the various ways in which both are cooked would also fill a volume. Next the meat is served—beef, mutton, lamb or veal—accompanied by one vegetable or a salad. If a vegetable, the salad follows as a separate course with fowl, game or cold meat of some kind. If a salad is the accessory for the meat then some vegetable comes after it as a single course preceding the cheese—never omitted—and which with fruit of some kind forms the dessert. Between the salad and cheese course a sweet dish, an "entremet," consisting of a custard, cream, tart or the like, is often served, but cheese and fruit are usually allowed the honors of the ordinary average luncheon dessert topped off with a good cup of coffee and a tiny glass of some liqueur.—What to Eat.

How Sea Birds Get a Drink.

"When I was a cabin boy," said an elderly sailor, "I often used to wonder, seen' birds thousands of miles out to sea, what they done for fresh water when they got thirsty."

"One day a squall answered that question for me. It was a hot and glitterin' day in the tropics, and in the clear sky overhead a black rain cloud appeared all of a sudden. Then out of the empty space over a hundred sea birds came dartin' from every direction. They got under the rain cloud and they waited there for about ten minutes, circled round and round, and when the rain began to fall they drank their fill."

"In the tropics, where the great sea birds sail thousands of miles away from shore, they get their drinkin' water in that way. They smell out a storm a long way off; they travel a hundred miles, maybe, to get under it, and they swallow enough raindrops to keep them goin'."—Portland Oregonian.

Oxford Training.

The average citizen, if asked what was taught at Oxford, would probably reply, "Useless learning." And in many ways it is a true answer, for its aim is not to turn out doctors, lawyers and merchants, ready made, but men with carefully trained minds, fitted not for this or that profession, but for the whole conduct of life. It is contended that such a man will insensibly take a wider view of his subject than the specialist, for he approaches it from a different standpoint.—London Outlook.

Good Living In China.

An English surgeon at Hongkong writes that "all Chinamen eat fish and pork at morning and evening meals. Fowls and ducks are always on the table of all but the most humble of the coolie class, and they do not have them because they cannot afford them. I hope this will be a sufficient answer to those who maintain that Chinamen live on rice. It is not nearly so true as that the Scotch live on porridge."

A Simple Question.

"May a man marry his widow's sister?" was a question I heard put to a prominent lawyer. "Certainly he may," was the reply without a moment's hesitation. Then the lawyer had another thing coming.—Albany Journal.

Seer.

"Tell me what you eat and I'll tell you what you are," said the seer. The man told him what he ate. "You're a blanked fool!" said the seer. "Wonderful! Wonderful!" exclaimed the man.—Puck.

At First Sight.

"Did he fall in love at first sight?" "Yes. First sight of her bank account."—Princeton Tiger.

A RACE FOR LIFE

A cyclist riding through the forest some miles from Moscow recently had a terrible adventure with a pack of wolves. After riding a long time, he says, I heard a slight sound as of "yak, yak." I stopped and dismounted in order to listen. After awhile I heard it again plainly. I concluded that it must be a dog barking in some farmyard near.

Mounting again, I rode on at a redoubled rate. The only thing that perplexed me was that the sound came from behind, but this I attributed to some curious echo.

Soon the sound grew louder, and it was plain that whatever it was it came from more throats than one. It was like a bark, yet it was not the bark of a dog.

In a moment the hideous truth burst in upon me. The sound was from behind. They were following me. They were drawing up on me. They were not dogs. They were wolves.

For a moment I felt as if there were no power in my limbs. Only by a strong effort I managed to work the bicycle at all. Even in those few seconds of terror the brutes had measurably approached.

Regaining courage, I raced for my life. I certainly forged ahead a little, but I could not keep the speed. Closer and closer undoubtedly they were coming. And now as the brutes were gaining on me they ceased to yelp.

But this was even less endurable. To think of death—and a death so horrible—coming thus, silent and inevitable, in the darkness of the night, in the midst of the Russian pine forest!

I could now hear the scurrying, pattering sound they made as they sped over the ground. Sometimes a solitary yelp would break the stillness, and, once or twice, as if preconcerted, the whole pack burst into a fearful chorus.

The moon was now up, and I could see, as I looked back, the pack 100 yards behind, all but one lean, famished brute, who, with red tongue lolling out, was, I saw to my horror, within ten yards of me.

Just then the noise of a torrent burst on my ears. A wide, open space in the center of the forest lay before me. Running through the center of it shone in the moonlight the foaming waters of a mountain stream.

It lay down in a low but steep ravine, its rocky bank rising straight to the height of ten feet or thereabout. On the opposite bank I could see the white road still continuing. Farther on a light beamed out.

I shouted loud, but it only seemed to set the wolves behind me yelping more fiercely than ever.

But, looking ahead, I perceived that the bridge no longer existed. It had probably been swept away by some flood in the river.

Desperately I looked at the light that lay only a few hundred yards away from me, that light that promised shelter and human companionship to me. I only reached it. I shouted and shouted again and again.

I was now within ten yards of the river. I was hesitating whether to end my life at once by riding over the precipice and into the torrent or to dismount and die standing at bay.

Just as I was about to adopt the latter course I perceived that the bridge was not entirely gone. One solitary pine trunk spanned the torrent from cliff to cliff.

In a moment I had decided on my course. I grasped the handles tightly and put on the highest speed I could, for I knew that the faster the pace the more accurately I could steer.

I murmured a prayer. I was on the beam. Fortunately it was somewhat planed at the top.

Steadily I kept my eyes on the narrow track, every little unevenness, every knot in the timber I had to steer clear of. The slightest jolt would have cast me into the swirling waters beneath.

I may say with truth that the texture and outline of every inch of that beam are imprinted on my memory to this day.

So intent was I on it that for the time I gave not a thought to the wolves that had forced on me so hazardous a ride. But twice a thrill of terror ran through me as the trunk tilted over to one side and threatened to pitch me down.

Yet it must be remembered that all this took place in, at the most, three seconds.

Now I was not a foot from the other bank when the beam gave a third tilt over. I leaned again to the other side. This time in vain.

Before I well knew it I was falling. But I made a wild spring toward the bank. Fortune favored me. I landed on my face in a cluster of bramble bushes.

I seized hold of them, and, though my legs hung over the precipice, I pulled myself up. Below me I heard a splash, caused by my machine as it fell.

A moment after that was a louder one. I turned to look and saw with the greatest joy that I ever felt that the beam was gone! I heard a smothered yelp below me and saw the wolf that had followed me so close swept down by the torrent. He and I must have been together on the beam.

Words fail to describe the terrible din of the infuriated pack when they saw their prey had escaped them.

I now looked up the road and heard answering shouts in the direction of the light. A door opened, as I could see by the increased brightness that beamed out.

There is little else to tell. I spent the night in the peasant's hut. The next day I reached Moscow, but little the worse for my terrible ride.—Boston Globe.

IRVING BACHELLER'S LITERARY WORKSHOP.

On the Connecticut shore of Long Island sound, directly opposite Oyster Bay, stands the quaint stone building which Irving Bacheller, the author of "Eben Holden," calls his "den" and in which he does his work. It is part bathhouse and part study and the waves of the sound cover it with spray during a storm. Not far from the "den" stands the home of the author. Like Judge Parker, Mr. Bacheller is very fond of a morning swim, and he often dives off the front veranda of his workshop into the bracing waters of the sound.

THE DUAL EMPIRE.

Bismarck's Simple Plan For the Dismemberment of Austria.

Like all other great plans, Bismarck's project for dismembering the Austrian empire was simple. Through his ubiquitous agents he promised the Poles and southern Slavs a free state; in the south, again, he furthered the irredentist propaganda, which should have as a natural consequence the cession of Italian speaking Austria to Italy; Galicia, the Bukovina and Dalmatia were to be separated from the empire, while the rest of Austria—German Austria—was to be linked to the possessions of William of Hohenzollern. This was the ideal he dangled before the eyes of the youth of the dual empire. Deputies in his pay raised the Hohenzollern ruf—the Berlin cry—in the very parliament. His mercenaries were busy in every province. They were abroad in all parts of the empire, from Bohemia to Croatia, from the Tyrol to the Bukovina; they were Magyars, Poles, Czechs, Ruthenians, Italians, Romanians—all the diverse subjects of the many tongued empire.

Never before was there an organization at once so indefinite and so powerful. Not all of these men who were backing at the state were money hired. Ambition bought some. Others were sincere patriots, seeing in the downfall of Austria an opportunity for the freedom of a new Hungary or the creation of a new Slavic empire. It should be borne in mind that the dual empire is really a triple state—Austria-Hungary-Bohemia—which is governed by the German speaking minority. These 22,000,000 Slavs, who are ruled by 14,000,000 Germans, are in a ceaseless struggle to gain power. They are animated by patriotic motives. Though traitors to Austria they are true to their race. In them Bismarck found tools ready to his hand. Nor did the men of the north of Hungary and in the Bukovina, the irredentists of the Italian provinces of Austria, the Ruthenians or "Little Russians," who form the bulk of the population of Galicia, which is called "Red Russia," need much urging to range themselves among the enemies of the house of Hapsburg. Not even England ever organized discontent in an alien land with greater success.

Those who are at all informed in matters of international politics know that one of the greatest powers to be reckoned with in continental affairs is "the cavalry of St. George." This is the cant term for English gold. Many a time have the Balkans seen the keen charge of golden guineas. Those red-robed riders have swept through Paris and Lisbon and many another capital. Bismarck stole these tactics from the English book. He stabled his golden cavalry in the very heart of the old empire. You may trace their hoof marks to the very door of the royal palace. You hear the noise of them on the stone flags of the Ballplatz.—Vance Thompson in Success.

Poultry Yard Peacemakers.

Two young bantam roosters in a New Jersey chicken yard glared at each other for several minutes the other morning, and then, amid a great squawking and leaping and flying of feathers, they began to fight.

A circle of young hens and cocks formed around them. This gathering looked on with quiet interest.

And then suddenly from a far corner a very aged, large and stately rooster came running at top speed. He scattered the ring of spectators to right and left. Then, with a blow of either robust wing, he drove the youthful combatants apart. After a few clucks and crows, exclamations of disgust and disappointment and baffled rage, peace was restored again. Then the old rooster went back to the quiet and lonely corner where he had been musing.

"I call that fellow my peacemaker," said the farmer. "Whenever a fight starts among the young fowl he turns to and puts a stop to it. Peacemakers in chicken yards aren't so unusual as you'd think. This one is the third I've owned, and I have friends that tell me they have had peacemakers too. A peacemaker is always an old rooster of great strength."—New York Telegram.

Took No Chance.

Phelim Casey was engaged on the ridge pole of Squire Pond's house when he lost his footing and slid down to the edge of the roof. His legs went down, but he clutched the eaves trough and hung on for dear life.

"That's right, Phelim!" called the squire, who had seen him slip. "You hang on a minute till I can get a ladder up there."

But even as he spoke Phelim relaxed his hold and dropped to the ground.

As soon as the squire made sure that no bones were broken and that Phelim was simply bruised here and there and shaken up he began to berate the man in vigorous language.

"Why in the world didn't you hang on, as I told you to, you great stupid?" he demanded. "I'd have been there in a minute."

"Maybe you wud," said Phelim sullenly, "but how did I know but the eaves would give way before you got there?"

Wonderful Vitality of Insect Eggs.

The eggs of insects have greater vitality than any other life germs now known. After exposing silkworm eggs to a temperature of 38 degrees below the zero of a Fahrenheit thermometer for five hours Spoillanz, the great entomologist, was surprised to find that they had not been frozen in the least and that their vitality was not in the least impaired. On another occasion he treated a dozen grasshopper eggs to a temperature of 35 degrees below zero without injuring the life germ in the slightest degree.

Puts an End to All.

A grievous wall oftentimes comes as a result of unbearable pain from overtaxed organs. Tizzness, backache, liver complaint and constipation. But thanks to Dr. Kinn's New Life Pills they put an end to it all. They are gentle but thorough. Try them. Only 25c. Guaranteed by Frank D. Hall, druggist.

Japanese Myths.

Japanese believe in more mythical creatures than any other people on the globe, civilized or savage. Among these are serpents 500 feet long and large enough to swallow an elephant, foxes with eight legs, monkeys with four ears and fishes with ten heads attached to one body. They also believe in the existence of a crane which, after it has lived for 999 years, has no need of any sustenance except water.

Talleyrand's Sharp Tongue.

When Mme. de Staël published her celebrated novel, "Delphine," she was supposed to have painted herself in the person of the heroine, and M. Talleyrand in that of an elderly lady, who is one of the principal characters. "They tell me," said he, the first time he met her, "that we are both of us in your novel in the disguise of women."

FOR THE CHILDREN

A Crow That Can Tell the Time.
George Wreake of Sidney township, near Leicester, Mass., has a pet crow, Bob, which has been with him four years and which he claims is the most intelligent and useful bird living, says the Minneapolis Times.

There is in the Wreake home an old heirloom, a beautiful cuckoo clock, brought from Switzerland in pioneer days, one of the kind with a little door at the top in front, out of which springs a little bird every sixty minutes and calls the hour.

After the crow had been in the family about two years he began to mock the clock cuckoo, and this finally grew to be a passion with him, so that he hardly ever failed to give a melodious "caw" when the clock cuckoo was calling the hour.

Some six months ago the clock fell, and the striking, or cuckoo, part was completely broken, so the door never opens, and the bird never comes out. This appeared to be a great puzzle to Bob, for he watched the clock for several days and seemed to be studying deeply.

At last, however, he came to a conclusion and greatly startled the family by taking up the duty the cuckoo had previously performed and counting out the hours perfectly at the exact moment with a clear call of "caw" for every hour the clock ought to have struck, one for 1 o'clock, five for 5 o'clock, and so on around the circle.

He has kept at his work to the present time and calls every hour when he can see the face of the clock as regularly and as perfectly as would an ordinary timepiece with its hammer and bell.

If a lamp be set at night where the light falls on the face of the clock, the crow, though he will doze between times on his perch, will waken and call every hour all night long.

Counting Out Rhymes.

Children the world over "count out" in their games to see who shall be "it." A favorite counting out rhyme in Philadelphia is:

Inty, minty, cuty, corn,
Apple seeds and briar thorn;
Brier, brier, limber lock,
Three geese in a flock;
O-u-t, out,
With a knotted dishcloth turned inside out.

Some other well known rhymes are:

One-cry, two-cry, tickery am,
Bobtail, vinegar, bottle and tam,
Harum, scarum,
Madgerum, marum,
Get you out, you little old man.

Eena, deena, dina, duss,
Calalaween, dina wus;
Tittle, tattle, what a rattle;
O-u-t spells out.

Apala, mesala,
Mesinka, meso,
Extra, lara,
Kara, sara,
Hock, weck,
Vallingseck,
Out!

Elsie's Gray Eyes.

Blanche and Elsie were making a doll dress out of a steel gray piece of goods.

"I think this will make a pretty dress," said Blanche. "I always did like blue."

"This isn't blue," said Elsie; "it's gray."

"No, it isn't; it's blue," retorted Blanche.

"Oh," said Elsie, a light breaking over her face, "of course it looks blue to you because your eyes are blue, and it looks gray to me because I've got gray eyes!"

Runs Without Legs.

"Grandpa," said little May, with her face all smiles, "I saw something without legs running across the kitchen floor this morning. What do you think it was?"

Grandpa looked puzzled awhile, but could not guess. "Give up," said he. "What was it?"

"Water!" laughingly shouted the little tot.

Queer Places For Birds' Nests.

Birds have been known to nest in letter boxes regardless of the mail that was unceremoniously dropped in on them. Two wrens once chose an old hat hanging on a nail outside a barn where laborers were going to and fro all day. An empty fruit basket which had been tossed into a tree was the home of another family of birds.

The Sacred White Elephant.

In Siam when a sacred white elephant dies it is given a funeral grander than that accorded to princes of the royal blood. Buddhist priests officiate, and thousands of devout Siamese men and women follow the deceased animal to the grave. Jewels representing much wealth are buried with the elephant.

Bobby and Grandma.

"Gran'ma," said Bobby, "does your classess mangle?"

"Yes, Bobby," answered grandma.

"Den," returned Bobby, "don't wear 'em when you mangle me."

Heavy as Cork.

All the cork used in the world in a year weighs a little over 1,000 tons.

The Telltale.

Why do you say that little bird told every one that he had heard, even down to the smallest word?

"I heard it," answered a boy, and I had a secret that met in the sky. Way up in the blue tree ever so high. Not a single word we ever tell. Not even our mother or sweet Aunt Nell. For a secret's thing to be kept very.

We told only the puppy, our dolls and the cat. They never would tell, we were quite sure of that. Now, how do you suppose that Uncle Bob heard?

He came to the tree and gave the password. And he sang a when he said he had heard from a bird.

Sneaky's Eyes.

Sneaky may almost be said to have glass eyes, inasmuch as their eyes never close. They are without lids and each is covered with a transparent scale, much resembling glass. When the reptile casts its outer skin the eye scales come off with the rest of the transparent envelope out of which the snake slips. This glassy eye scale is so tough that it effectually protects the true eye from the twigs, sharp grass and other obstructions which the snake encounters in its travels, yet it is transparent enough to allow the most perfect vision. Thus, if the snake has not a glass eye it may, at any rate, be said to wear eyeglasses.

A Hint From the Baron.

Upon a client complaining to Baron Rothschild that he had lent 10,000 francs to a person who had gone off to Constantinople without leaving any acknowledgment of the debt the baron said:

"Well, write to him and tell him to send you the 50,000 francs he owes you."

"But he only owes me 10,000," objected the other.

"Precisely," rejoined the baron, "and he will write and tell you so, and thus you will get his acknowledgment of it."

Picture Books For Foreigners.

Picture books for the benefit of travelers are kept in the Paris police stations. It frequently occurs that foreigners lose things which they are unable to describe, because of unfamiliarity with the French language. The picture books contain representations of various articles, and the inquirer has only to turn the leaves and point out the illustration which most resembles the property he has lost.

TEACHERS' PAY

Will Pedagogues Receive Compensation for Attending Institute?—Question Has Not Yet Been Considered by the City School Board.—Zanesville Says No.

The executive committee of the Licking county teachers' institute, which is to be held in Newark Aug. 22-26, has announced that the new school code provides that all teachers attending all sessions of the institute are entitled to pay for the same, provided they register at the institute.

This is in accordance with the opinion of the attorney general, but it seems this interpretation of the new school law is not shared by everybody. A well-known man said:

"I believe the attorney general's interpretation of the statute is wrong. It provides that, while the schools are in session, teachers may close for one week to take advantage of the institute meetings. Also another section provides that the city board of education shall provide for the holding of an institute for its own teachers."

The Advocate inquired Tuesday morning of President D. M. Keller whether the city school board had considered the matter. Mr. Keller said that the question had not as yet been discussed by the board, but would in all probability be brought up at the meeting to be held next Monday. Mr. Keller said that there is a question as to the interpretation of the law and so far as Mr. Keller is concerned he hopes to have a court decision in the matter before the local board is required to take action. There are about 35 Newark teachers. Their pay for one week would be about $1,000.

The Licking county institute will be held in the high school chapel here beginning Aug. 22. The instructors will be Superintendent C. C. Miller of Lima; Superintendent A. D. Call of Ansonia, Conn.; and Prof. J. J. Deary of Columbus.

NO PAY AT ZANESVILLE.

Zanesville, O., Aug. 9.—City school teachers attending the present county institute are not to be paid a week's salary for their presence there.

Clerk J. T. Irvine of the city board of education wants it understood that he will not issue any orders on the school board treasurer.

Upon learning of the attorney general's recent opinion, which is favorable to the payment of a full week's salary to both city and county teachers, Superintendent Lash notified city teachers that this would not be done by the local board.

At the special meeting of the board to be held tomorrow evening, preliminary arrangements for a separate city teachers' institute will be made. This will probably be held during the Christmas holiday week.

Zanesville has about 100 teachers. Their combined salaries for one week amount to $1,700.

TEACHERS' INSTITUTE.

Superintendent J. D. Simpson of the Newark public schools and Professor Hard of Chillicothe are instructors at the Muskingum county teachers' institute in Zanesville this week.

A Budding Financier.

The seven-year-old son of a prosperous publisher had come to town with his father. The journey had been devoted largely to a discussion over the purchase of a most desirable pony, just the right size for a seven-year-old, and the plan had been vetoed by the stern parent.

When they reached his father's private office the boy stood in the open doorway and studied the double line of clerks, bookkeepers, stenographers and helpers which extended the length of the floor. Finally he crossed to his father's desk.

"Father," he said earnestly, "do all those people work for you?"

"Yes," replied the father, not looking up from his mail.

"Do you pay their salaries?"

"Yes." "Well, say, if you'd take a dollar out of each of their salaries this week, wouldn't that money pay for my pony?"

"For several of them," replied his father dryly.

"Very well; I think you'd better take it out. Each one of 'em wouldn't miss the dollar much, and it would mean a lot for us. You can have what's left over from the pony."—New York Press.

Skeletons.

The mode of preparing skeletons for the use of the medical profession is a very delicate operation. The scalpel is first called into requisition to remove the muscular tissues. Its work being done, the bones are boiled, being carefully watched meanwhile that they may not be overdone. After this cannibalistic procedure they are bleached in the sun. Even the spots of grease are sure to appear when they are exposed to heat. The French treat these with ether and benzine, securing thereby a dazzling whiteness, which is a distinguishing mark of their skeletons.

A brass rod with all the proper curvatures supports the spinal column. Delicate brass wires hold the ribs in place. Linges of the most perfect workmanship give to the joints a graceful and lifelike movement. Cleverly concealed hooks and eyes render disjunction at pleasure possible. The whole construction plainly indicates the care and skill of an artist and connoisseur.

ORIGIN OF "KICKERS."

Supposed to Come From an Occupation in Cornish Mines.

"I believe that the origin of the expressive bit of slang 'kickers' may be found in the very lowest form of occupation any member of the human race follows," W. M. Robinson states.

"Between Wormsley's and St. Helen's, in Cornwall, is an underground canal connecting the lower levels of the coal mines at Wormsley's with the surface station at St. Helen's which saves a great deal of money for the mine owners in handling the coal, which is simply loaded on the barges in the mines and transported by the canal under the mountains to the harbor at St. Helen's. When the canal was devised, however, how to provide for locomotion for these barges was a problem.

"Mules couldn't be used, and there were circumstances which made steam impossible, but an inventive genius finally solved the riddle by suggesting that cross pieces of timber be placed along the roof of the canal, which was very low, and men could lie on their backs on top of the loaded barges and 'kick' the vessel along. After the barge was once started this was found to be feasible.

The men could easily keep the load in motion by the means suggested, and it has ever since been in use. There is no question about the low grade of this sort of work, and even the men who follow it are constantly 'kicking' around the villages where they live. They were known at the mines officially as 'kickers' because of their work, and their vocal complaints, continually indulged in, 'caused every one at Wormsley's or St. Helen's, no matter what their station or employment, who indulged in complaints to be called 'kickers.' I presume that the origin of the word, as we use it, is just what I have suggested."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

DUTCH SUPERSTITIONS.

If the fire goes out on New Years eve trouble is foreboded.

If you walk backward, the errand you are bound on at the time will fail.

To prevent cramp wear an eel-skin garter about the left leg below the knee.

To cure warts rub a black snail over them, but the snail must afterward be impaled on a rose thorn.

The first person to enter your house on New Year's day will, if he be light haired, bring bad luck to you; if dark haired, good luck.

To test your sweetheart's humor make him stir the fire. If he stirs it to a hearty blaze he is good humored. If he makes it smoke and fade he is hard to live with.

If a lock of your hair burns bright and long you will have a happy life of seventy years or more, but if it burns weakly and soon goes out your life will be both sad and short.

Mistaken Identity.

The wearied fat hunter pushed long and persistently at the button labeled "Janitor." The house bore a sign stating that there were apartments to rent. The janitor was evidently absent from his post of duty, as there was no response to her repeated ringing.

Disheartened, the seeker for a home was about to turn away when the door was opened from the inside and a bright faced boy of about seven years was disclosed. He looked wonderingly at the visitor, who asked:

"What kind of an apartment is there for rent here?"

A look of mingled disgust and scorn slowly overspread the youngster's face. He surveyed the questioner from head to foot and finally said with an aggrieved air:

"Say, I ain't the janitor."—New York Press.

Why They Smiled.

Brother Jones was noted for his long and laborious prayers, and although the good people of the church respected him they were not at all pleased to hear him pray in meeting. The new minister was not aware of Brother Jones' unpopularity as a "prayer," so he had no idea why a ripple of amusement passed over the congregation when, after a hymn had been sung, he said, "Brother Jones will lead us in prayer," and in a fervent tone added, "and may God help us."

Suicide Prevented.

The startling announcement that a preventive or suicide had been discovered would interest many. A run-down system or discrepancy invariably precede suicide, and something has been found that will prevent that condition which makes suicide likely. At the first thought of self-destruction take Electric Bitters. It being a great tonic and nerve will strengthen the nerves and build up the system.
